

Online Catalogue

ISBN: 9781913603045

Available from Gardners

Available from BOTH press
booksonthehill@gmail.com

RRP: 6.99

An imaginative mystery to be solved, which Adrian Tchaikovsky, a master of the unexpected, manages to entice and string you along, until you don't want, but need to know the answers.

Pseudo-historian Doctor Hendry is missing. His employers want answers.

Paranormal investigators Michael and Walter join the search party to Hendry's remote Scottish cliff-top home, accompanied by two unscrupulous mercenaries and a deeply sceptical history professor.

Among the doctor's research they find more than they bargained for or can even comprehend, and the rescue becomes a fight for survival.

This is gripping storytelling at its finest as Tchaikovsky plays upon the characters' and reader's fears, feeding into their imagination and the dread of what lurks beneath the waves. I loved every second and yearned for more.

Bunny's Pause Blog

I loved the creepiness of the old house in this book and the mystery is very intriguing. I even got goosebumps towards the end when something unexpected appears. ...prepare to expect the unexpected in this Adrian Tchaikovsky book.

The Book Magnet Blog

- Part of a very successful kickstarter that had national press coverage , including BBC, The Bookseller and the i-news paper.
- Dyslexia Friendly.
- Perfect quick read when travelling.
- Featured in trade Magazines.
- Publisher himself is dyslexic.

Contact details
Dr. Alistair Sims
01275 873647

Adrian Tchaikovsky is an award-winning British fantasy and science fiction author. He is a keen live role-player, occasional amateur actor, and has trained in stage-fighting. He has written over 20 novels and won the 2016 Arthur C. Clarke Award for Children of Time and the 2017 British Fantasy Award — Best Fantasy Novel for The Tiger and the Wolf.

A thoughtful treatise on pregnancy wrapped up in a bloody body-horror bow. Thana Niveau brings the ordinary into the supernatural.

After checking the test twice, there's no doubt about it; Molly Landor is pregnant. She'd always imagined having kids – someday – but she'd hoped it would be her choice. Planned. Not... an accident. Somehow she just knows – she has to keep it.

As the pregnancy progresses Molly's behaviour grows increasingly erratic – she pushes her friends away, isolates herself and refuses to see a doctor. Eventually, even Molly begins to fear there is something unnatural growing within her.

Oh my goodness, this book is so creepy! It's horrifying, scary but absolutely brilliant. I loved it even though it totally creeped me out. I'd definitely read more from this author, although her books might make me want to hide behind the sofa.

The Book Magnet Blog

ISBN:9781913603069

Available from Gardners

Available from BOTH press

booksonthehill@gmail.com

RRP: 6.99

- Part of a very successful kickstarter that had national press coverage , including BBC, The Bookseller and the i-news paper.
- Dyslexia Friendly.
- Perfect quick read when travelling.
- Featured in trade Magazines.
- Publisher himself is dyslexic.

Contact details
Dr. Alistair Sims
01275 873647

Thana Niveau is a horror and science fiction writer. She is the author of the short story collections Octoberland, Unquiet Waters, and From Hell to Eternity, as well as the novel House of Frozen Screams. She has been shortlisted three times for the British Fantasy Awards – for Octoberland and From Hell to Eternity, and for her short story Death Walks En Pointe. She shares her life with fellow writer John Llewellyn Probert, in a crumbling gothic tower filled with arcane books and curiosities. And toy dinosaurs.

Stan Nicholls brings a note of nostalgia of Heroic fantasy, with his signature storytelling, a tale of heroism and personal growth. One that can be read and re-read, always bringing a smile at the finish.

The village of Catterby is beholden to no lord or lady. No one believes Lord Salex Nacandro, a sorcerer from far to the north, could be a threat. They're wrong.

Young warrior Kye Beven lacks confidence. Everyone – except Kye's friend Dyan – questions how he was ever selected to join the 'Band', the elite protectors of the village.

But when Catterby is menaced by an emissary of Nacandro, Kye reaches for his bow and steps up to the mark.

ISBN: 9781913603007

Available from Gardners

Available from BOTH press
booksonthehill@gmail.com

RRP: 6.99

Kye is an amazing hero who has no belief in himself but all he really needs is the belief of his friend and a little bit of magic. A wonderful fantasy tale with a huge message: belief in yourself is the most powerful weapon.

The Book Magnet Blog

- Part of a very successful kickstarter that had national press coverage , including BBC, The Bookseller and the i-news paper.
- Dyslexia Friendly.
- Perfect quick read when travelling.
- Featured in trade Magazines.
- Publisher himself is dyslexic.

Contact details
Dr. Alistair Sims
01275 873647

Stan Nicholls is the author of more than thirty books and was shortlisted for the 2001 British Fantasy Award. His Orcs: First Blood trilogy is a worldwide bestseller, with over a million copies sold to date. Both Orcs trilogies made the New York Times bestseller list. Stan's books have been published in more than 20 countries. He was the first manager of Forbidden Planet's original London store and helped establish and run the New York branch. He received the Le'Fantastique Lifetime Achievement Award for Contributions to Literature (2007)

ISBN: 9781913603021

Available from Gardners

Available from BOTH press
booksonthehill@gmail.com

RRP: 6.99

Steve Savile hits the perfect note in this homage to Sherlock Holmes. Those who are familiar with Conan Doyle style of prose and storytelling are in for a treat.

How can one man be in four places at once? Lecturing to a carefully selected audience, Dr Watson recounts the unravelling of this impossible riddle after he and The Great Detective are summoned to Stockholm.

The King of Sweden has been spotted in several cities on the same day, many miles apart. Threats of blackmail hint at some dark purpose behind this deception. As Holmes and Watson dig deeper, they uncover a convoluted plot of murder, mummery, and mesmerism.

Beautifully written with an engaging, entertaining and intelligent plot.

The Book Magnet Blog

The mystery is intriguing and though it's quickly solved, there is still a fun twist as the master detective reveals the truth.

Hair Past A Freckle

- Part of a very successful kickstarter that had national press coverage , including BBC, The Bookseller and the i-news paper.
- Dyslexia Friendly.
- Perfect quick read when travelling.
- Featured in trade Magazines.
- Publisher himself is dyslexic.

Contact details
Dr. Alistair Sims
01275 873647

Steven Savile is a bestselling British fantasy, horror and thriller writer. He lives just outside Stockholm, Sweden having emigrated in 1997. His published works include The Memory Man, Coldfall Wood, Glass Town, One Man's War, Parallel Lines, and numerous short stories in magazines and anthologies. He has written for Games Workshop, Primeval, Stargate and Doctor Who. Steven was a runner-up for the British Fantasy Award in 2000 and again in 2010. He has been published in a dozen languages and sold more than half a million copies of his novels and stories worldwide.

The man Who Would Be King is arguably the best and certainly the last story that Kipling wrote while living in India. This story encapsulated Kipling's contradictions.

In This Classic Kipling tale, two British adventures set out to become kings of Kafiristan and make their fortune.

They concoct a plan to impress the locals with their guns and military know how, and their scheme gets off to a promising start. But as their miniature empire expands, they begin to lose their grip - on the situation and their sanity.

Kipling's legacy is complicated. He was the author of beloved children's books such as The Jungle Book , but has been criticized for his portrayal of woman, racism and his support for British imperialism. Throughout his writing, Kipling is contradictory: he was complicit and subversive of the imperialist ideology; he sympathised with but was also racially insulting to the Indian people; his portrayal of women was admiring, but misogynistic

Forward - Alistair Sims

ISBN: 9781913603144
Available from Gardners
Available from BOTH press
booksonthehill@gmail.com
RRP: 6.99

- Part of a very successful kickstarter that had national press coverage , including BBC, The Bookseller and the i-news paper.
- Dyslexia Friendly.
- Perfect quick read when travelling.
- Featured in trade Magazines.
- Publisher himself is dyslexic.

Contact details
Dr. Alistair Sims
01275 873647

Joseph Rudyard Kipling was an English journalist, short-story writer, poet, and novelist. He was born in India in 1865 and the country inspired much of his work. Kipling's works of fiction include The Jungle Book , Kim , and many short stories. He continued writing until his death in 1936.

If you are looking for a quintessential horror, John Llewellyn Probert certainly delivers. Building on its atmospheric setting the mundane descends into madness.

Searching for a new creative outlet, just for herself, Lynda joins Dr Sampson's choir at the local psychiatric hospital.

As she approaches the gates of the gothic monstrosity on a rain lashed evening, she tells herself it's just her imagination setting her on edge... right? She keeps telling herself that, until she finds she is a prisoner. Something doesn't want her to leave.

I enjoyed the creeping sense of dread in this chilling read.

A Hair Past A Freckle Blog

ISBN: 9781913603083

Available from Gardners

Available from BOTH press
booksonthehill@gmail.com

RRP: 6.99

Wow! This is an excellent psychological horror. I had no idea what was going to happen or whether what I was reading was actual reality or the interpretation of an inmate at the psychiatric institution. Creepy and chilling...

The Book Magnet Blog

- Part of a very successful kickstarter that had national press coverage , including BBC, The Bookseller and the i-news paper.
- Dyslexia Friendly.
- Perfect quick read when travelling.
- Featured in trade Magazines.
- Publisher himself is dyslexic.

Contact details
Dr. Alistair Sims
01275 873647

John Llewellyn Probert was the winner of the 2013 British Fantasy Award for best novella with Nine Deaths of Dr Valentine. He won the Dracula Society's Children of the Night Award for his first book, The Faculty of Terror, in 2006. Since then he has published fifteen volumes of horror fiction, including six short story collections. His non-fiction publications include a book on his favourite film, Theatre of Blood (Electric Dreamhouse) and he regularly writes about new movie releases at his online review site, House of Mortal Cinema. He lives in a gothic mansion in deepest Somerset with his wife, the author Thana Niveau.

Reminiscent of masters of the spy genre, Steven Poore tells a tale of daring do in a world of intrigue, with his usual flare and immaculate writing.

1958. An alternate Marrakesh. The Cold War wages on and with the launch of Sputnik, Russia is conquering space at last.

Young Saif's mission; escort an undercover British agent to the Deputy Security directorate. Evading high tech Russian surveillance devices, Saif borrows a grand taxi and heads to the pick-up point.

But the agent – aka "The Lighting Rod" – is the one man guaranteed to make a dangerous situation more perilous.

ISBN: 9781913603120

Available from Gardners

Available from BOTH press
booksonthehill@gmail.com

RRP: 6.99

The race is on to escape the Russian secret service and deliver the spy safely into British hands.

- Part of a very successful kickstarter that had national press coverage , including BBC, The Bookseller and the i-news paper.
- Dyslexia Friendly.
- Perfect quick read when travelling.
- Featured in trade Magazines.
- Publisher himself is dyslexic.

Contact details
Dr. Alistair Sims
01275 873647

Steven Poore co-produced the Sheffield theatre premiere of Terry Pratchett's Wyrd Sisters. He is a founder member of the Sheffield SF&F Writers'. His novel, Heir To The North, was shortlisted for Best Newcomer at the British Fantasy Awards in 2017. He has featured in a number of anthologies with the BFS Award-winning publisher Fox Spirit Books.

Joel creates an intriguing science fiction story that slowly peels layer upon layer of rubble to expose myth and science combined.

The planet Wanda V has been abandoned ever since the Gates collapsed, generations ago. Scraping together funding and borrowed equipment, scientist and archaeologist Hala ventures into the ruins.

Alone on the desolate planet, Hala finds there may be more truth in the myths of invading gods than anyone suspected. Can Hala escape? And what does this self-proclaimed deity want?

ISBN: 9781913603106

Available from Gardners

Available from BOTH press
booksonthehill@gmail.com

RRP: 6.99

- Part of a very successful kickstarter that had national press coverage , including BBC, The Bookseller and the i-news paper.
- Dyslexia Friendly.
- Perfect quick read when travelling.
- Featured in trade Magazines.
- Publisher himself is dyslexic.

Contact details
Dr. Alistair Sims
01275 873647

Joel Cornah is an author, journalist, and blogger. His novels, The Sea-Stone Sword and The Sky Slayer, were published BFS Award-winning publisher, Grimbold books. He is an editor for The Science-Fiction and Fantasy Network, which has featured authors such as Brandon Sanderson and Kameron Hurley, as well as TV stars. He is outspoken about his dyslexia, supporting efforts to spread awareness through talks, articles, and books. He runs The Campaign Trail podcast, which has featured critically acclaimed authors, such as Anna Smith Spark alongside its regular players.

Contact details

Dr. Alistair Sims

01275 873647

booksonthehill@gmail.com

Books on the Hill

75 Hill Road

Clevedon

BS21 7PL

Available from BOTH press

Available from Gardners

I am passionate about helping people who have dyslexia, or have any difficulty with reading, to access the joy of good fiction. At BOTH we aim to make exciting, good quality fiction accessible to those not currently provided for by today's traditional mass book market.

Furthermore we wanted to create a tool for our fellow booksellers to help those customers who live with dyslexia and find reading books challenging.

We are working with talented and award winning authors to publish titles, which are dyslexic friendly books aimed at adults and older teens.

Our plan for the future is to publish more amazing books with some of the best authors across the country and beyond.